The Standard.William Glasemann, Publisher.
AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
(Established 1870)

This paper will always fight for progress and reform. It will not knowingly tolerate injustice or corruption and will always fight demagogues of all parties; it will oppose privileged classes and public plunderers; it will never lack sympathy with the poor. It will always remain devoted to the public welfare and will never be satisfied with merely printing news, it will always be drastically independent and will never be afraid to attack wrongs, whether committed by the rich or the poor.

THE DYNAMITING OF THE ECCLES' HOME.

This blackmailing of the family of the late David Eccles has taken on the form of robbery employed by the Blackhand of New York and other large cities, where violence is employed to intimidate and overawe. This blowing up of the home of LeRoy Eccles on Sunday night undoubtedly was intended to so unnerv the members of the Eccles' family that they would yield to the demand for gold. So far the Eccles boys have shown excellent courage in their resolve to resist the threats of the blackmailers. In doing this, they are making a fight not alone for themselves, but in behalf of the entire community and the people of Ogden should get back of them. Hundreds already have volunteered, and the sentiment as the Standard has found it, is unanimous that nothing must be left undone to clear Ogden of this terrible odium.

But how to proceed, is the question. Prominent business men, in conference yesterday, suggested a committee of safety to be made up of three or four men, who shall be supplied with sufficient funds to bring to Ogden the most expert detective in the United States—Burns, if possible. Some have said that the city and county should provide the funds. This is a community affair and the burden should be carried by all. But above all there must be a well organized campaign, to be carried on a year or two years, if necessary, and one or more men must be kept on the job, day and night, until the blackmailers are caught or driven out.

We understand that three more prominent families, other than those generally known to be the victims of the work of the blackmailers, have received threatening letters. The success met with in the Culver, Boyle, Dee and Bristol affairs have encouraged the criminals to enlarge their field of activity, and, we can understand how, with continued tribute, the Blackhanders would go on levying blackmail until half of the city would be terrorized.

No one seeks to live in a city where the Blackhanders are at work, and that phase of the situation is a serious one, because if this blowing-up of homes continues, Ogden will be injured in name and in material wealth.

We are quite certain the Blackhanders are not a local product; they are men who have been here long enough to know the city from one end to the other, but they are not one of us. They have come out of the criminal element of some large city where the base methods of the Blackhand have been successful. Of course, they are not low-brows, or stupid fellows such as are depicted as making up the criminal class. They are bright, clever, skillful, daring men who play their wits against those of the police and others entrusted with the peace of this city and to meet their cunning and craftiness there is needed some one just a little brighter who is trained in the catching of rogues.

When the committee of safety gets under way, the United States government must be urged to do its full share. The brightest special officers in that line of duty must be brought on the ground and kept there.

The police are doing their utmost circumscribed in their work as they are, but they must be given more latitude. Here is a big job for Chief Norton and his men; if they can beat out the private detectives, the secret service men and others in this ferreting out of this gang, they will gain fame. And they shall have opportunities which may be denied others. Now and then a disgruntled confederate of a gang seeks out the police to tell his grievances and offer a clue. That has been the history of hundreds of crimes in each of which more than one man participated. But let us offer a small piece of advice. The "Bench" has not been patrioted. It cannot be with the present force. That defect can be overcome by a volunteer service. There are men in every part of Ogden, with telephones in their homes, who will agree to respond to a call at any hour of the night. Instead of sending the patrol auto out, as on Sunday night, with bell clanging, why not arrange to block every zone or district in this city by the services of volunteers?

Sheriff Harrison made a check-er board of the outskirts of this city and by the use of that system halted two holdups at the Riverdale bridge. The men at the time escaped after an exchange of shots with an officer, but they were identified, traced to Salt Lake and the officers were close on their trail when the desperate fellows, after robbing a jewelry store and killing a bystander, were captured. There must be some similar system by which the possible avenues of escape from different parts of the city can be blocked.

MRS PANKHURST, THE MILITANT

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, justifying her militant crusade in England, told a Chicago audience on Sunday that the most potent cause of the fight being waged by English women was the wrongs inflicted on women and children under the English laws, and she pointed to the absence of white slave legislation.

"Chicago is one of the first great cities in the world to lead the way to the eradication of this traffic," she said. "The outcome of the work of your vice commission has been the appointment of commissions all over the world which have begun an inquiry into the evil effects of the exploitation of women and young girls. The women of England have as one of their first objects the changing of our laws to right these conditions. The women of England are battling for the future health and the very existence of the race, and in time the men will thank us for what we have done."

"We have laws in our country dealing with moral offenses against women and little children. We find the laws and their penalties are inadequate, and the administration is even worse than the laws themselves."

That may seem to offer Mrs. Pankhurst ample excuse for smashing in windows, creating riots and otherwise bringing the entire system of law and order into contempt, but the average person will fail to see the point.

DO YOUR SHOPPING EARLY

Why not start on your Christmas shopping before the rush of the December days? Why not get a pick of the holiday goods before the crowds start to buy?

An experienced woman shopper says of early shopping:

"Laying aside the question of having a greater assortment of goods from which to make a selection, there is another and more potent reason for shopping early and that is the pleasant anticipation of giving. By starting early, you can buy your presents with discrimination and enjoyment and you can put into the buying your best thought."

Incidentally, in getting the best out of Christmas yourself, you will be saving the health and happiness of hundreds of saleswomen, who are usually rushed to the breaking point about the time that the tinkling bells of Santa Claus are heard.

OUTSIDE COMMENT ON THE BLACKHANDERS

The Blackhanders in Ogden already have given this city unenviable advertising. The latest outrage is the subject of comment in many of the papers coming to hand.

Near at home, the crime is viewed as one that calls for all the power at Ogden's command to uproot. The Salt Lake Tribune has this to say:

The people of Utah read with horror and indignation yesterday that the perfidious blackhanders had carried out their threat to blow up one of the Eccles homes. While offers of sympathy may appear futile before the secret and mysterious power of the dynamiters, nevertheless the members of this prominent family should know that every good man and woman in the state is ready and willing to aid them in every way possible. Throughout their ordeal, by day and their nerve-racking vigils by night the Eccles family have shown a heroism that must win the respect of all. Refusing to accede to the demands of the blackmailers, and undaunted by menaces of death if they failed to comply with those demands, Mrs. Eccles and her children have displayed a calm courage that is beyond praise. Had they rendered to the edicts of the blackmailers there could be none to blame.

For months the members of the Eccles family have been compelled to employ private guards for their protection. Can the people of the community in which they live regard such expense on the part even of a rich family with satisfaction? The people of the county owe it to themselves to extend the means of protection so that not a single person in the city or county shall be subjected to the terrifying experience that has been the ever present horror of the Eccles family for many weeks.

Admittedly, however, the blackhanders are one of the most baffling criminals with whom the police have to deal. It is the modern survival of the pirates and bandits who made kidnapping for ransom their profession. Such bandits still exist in northern Africa and southeastern Europe where their ancient methods are still possible. But in this country, where the safeguards thrown around civilization are much more efficient than the protective methods of barbaric countries, more subtle and therefore more terrible means must be employed by the criminals. And thus the bandit has evolved into blackhanders skilled in the use of explosives.

The ordinary citizen knows enough about firearms to feel a degree of confidence that he can deal with the criminals who use revolvers, but he knows little of the mysterious power of dynamite in practiced hands he stands helpless and agast. The individual who has skilled himself in the use of explosives commands a power such as Merlin, the magician, is reputed to have had in the days of King Arthur. Such knowledge is quite aside from that of the ordinary law-abiding citizen. The blackhanders are fiendish because he believes he possesses a power that can set at defiance the law and the guardians of the law.

That the blackhanders can be dealt with successfully however, has been demonstrated in New York, where this class of criminals has been driven to complete inactivity within the last few months.

The framing of laws to deal with criminals of the blackhand type is necessarily difficult. Various plans have been suggested. In a general way, all of them look to severe restrictions on the shipment and sale of explosives and the imposition of heavy penalties for such crimes as blackmailing, death threats and abduction.

Now that dynamite is being employed extensively in mining, engineering work and even in agriculture, legislatures find themselves confronted by a most perplexing problem when they seek to limit the use only to those who should have a right to the use of explosives. Nevertheless, this is a problem that should be faced, and, indeed, is being faced by various states and by the national government.

At present, however, the authorities in Ogden and Utah must deal with the situation by means of the laws and facilities at their command. The laws are sufficiently effective if the criminals can be captured, and, fortunately, it is within the power of the state to increase the facilities by which the men may be caught.

Meantime the sympathy of the community flows out to the Eccles family. We sometimes have wondered whether the blackhanders have wives and children of their own, and if they have, how they can look upon a sleeping wife or babe and then go forth into the night and explode the bomb which is to maim, slay or torture some other man's wife or child. It is difficult to imagine such blackness even in the soul of a blackhand.

GRAND JURY TO BE MAINLY WOMEN

San Mateo, Cal., Nov. 3.—The new grand jury of this county may be controlled by women. Superior Judge George Buck has summoned seventeen women and three men to appear before him Wednesday, from whom eighteen grand jurors will be chosen. Among those summoned is Mrs. Lella Moskrey, society leader and poet of Hillsborough, a fashionable suburb of San Francisco. If the women form a majority of the jurors chosen it will be an unprecedented action in the history of the state.

LOVES HER BAIRNS MORE THAN SWEDEN

Crown Princess Margaret and her latest born.

Crown Princess Margaret of Sweden has only four children, and she spends all her days and most of her nights worrying about their health. Her affection for them has no bounds, and she has had many photographs taken showing her in the act of fondling and kissing her little ones.

Sentimental Swedes lay in stocks of these pictures and wonder if mother ever before loved her infants as does the Crown Princess Margaret.

MORE RIOTING IN INDIANAPOLIS

Sheriff Arms Several Hundred Deputies to Control Crowds—600 Strikebreakers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—The announcement that the street car company expected to send out a few cars brought promise of further rioting in the street car strike today. Vehicles of all kinds were pressed into service to bring workers from their homes to the heart of the city.

More than 600 strikebreakers housed in the various car barns, well guarded with policemen, made no appearance, although the crowds that have surrounded the barns since the strike was called Friday night, disappeared soon after midnight. The sheriff expects to arm several hundred deputies to keep the crowds on the streets moving, leaving the policemen free to aid in moving the cars.

BRICK BUILDING SUDDENLY FALLS

Crushes Frame Dwelling—Two Killed, Three Fatally Hurt, One Seriously Injured.

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 3.—The entire side of a four-story brick store house in North Front street collapsed early today and crushed through the frame dwelling house of John Hughes immediately adjoining. As a result, two persons are dead, three fatally injured and another seriously hurt.

The storehouse, a new building, was filled with bales of rags and tobacco. Michael Greenburg, its owner, said the building was dynamited but firemen and police found no evidences of an explosion and declared that faulty construction probably caused the collapse.

PAWLING ASPIRES TO PRESIDENCY

New York, Nov. 3.—George Franklin Pawling, Philadelphia, is to be put forward as a candidate for the presidency of the Amateur Athletic union at the annual meeting of that organization on November 17. The Middle Atlantic association, of which Mr. Pawling is president, believes there is strong sentiment in giving the leadership of the parent body to one of their members, as New England, the west and metropolitan district have supplied many presidents, the incumbent being Gustavus T. Kirby of this city who is finishing his second term, which is considered the limit of office tenure.

SIXTH ANNUAL AUTO RACE IS BEGUN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 3.—Twenty-three motor cars, stripped for fast work, were sent away early today in the long grind of the sixth annual Los Angeles-to-Phoenix automobile race, the first car being started at daybreak and the others following at ten minute intervals.

The racers expect to reach the finish line, 574 miles away, some time tomorrow and Governor George W. P. Hunt of Arizona will officiate as referee.

Despite the early hour a big crowd was gathered to watch the start and each racer set out amid a burst of cheering. The night control station is at Yuma, Ariz., and the race will be resumed tomorrow morning. Six prizes, totalling $3500 are offered for the race. They are graded from $3500 for the winner down to $500.

POLICEMEN KILL AND WOUND MEN

Fire Fusillade of Shots to Check Mad Rush of Steers in New York.

New York, Nov. 3.—In a fusillade of shots fired by policemen to check the mad rush of sixteen steers which escaped from a railroad stock pen on the west side early today, one man was killed and one wounded. George Beattie toppled from the seat of an express wagon when a stray bullet pierced his brain. Another bullet bored through the foot of Walter Wagonheim, a waiter.

One steer crashed into an automobile truck, putting it out of commission, another bowled over a policeman, bruising him badly. One fled into Madison avenue and was killed in front of the home of Cardinal Farley.

GERMAN CROWDS HAIL NEW RULER

Young Duke and Duchess of Brunswick Cheered By the People.

Brunswick, Germany, Nov. 3.—Disagreeable weather failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the crowds here today for the state entry into Brunswick of the young duke and duchess of Brunswick, hitherto known as Prince Ernest August of Cumberland and Princess Victoria Luise of Prussia.

They drove from the railroad station to the palace in a state coach drawn by eight horses through streets packed with people who cheered them as they passed. The procession was led and followed by troops of cavalry.

At the palace the duke, after his new courtiers had been presented, read from the steps of the throne in the presence of the members of the cabinet and of the deputies, a speech in which he again asserted his loyalty to existing conditions in the German empire.

CORPORATION TAX UPHELD BY COURT

Washington, D. C., Nov. 3.—The Massachusetts foreign corporation tax was upheld as constitutional today by the supreme court. Under this decision the commonwealth will be able to collect many thousands of dollars as an excise tax on foreign corporations doing business in Massachusetts.

THE WORLD'S MARKET NEWS*WALL STREET.

New York, Nov. 3.—Long stack was in more evidence in the downward selling movement which depressed prices today. Latest reports of the government's attitude toward the present administration in Mexico, filing of the brief in the dissolution suit against International Harvester, tension in the world's money markets and the decline of American stocks in London, all were influential in lowering prices.

Saturday's poor bank statement gave promise of stiff money rates for some time yet, with the prospect of considerable shifting of loans to enable the banks to make up the deficit in their reserves. Call loans were renewed at 6 per cent. The effect of these failures wore off after large inroads had been made in prices and the market grew calmer. New Haven established a new low record at $0 1-4. Bonds were easy.
